CIVIL DEFENSE

PUBLIC SAFETY

"At least one member of every family should take a course in first aid," Dr. Charles W. Steele of Lewiston, State Civil Defense Medical Director, recently stated.

There is no question that a major disaster in Maine would tax beyond endurance the ranks of doctors and nurses. But much could be done by a trained corps of first-aid workers to care for the less seriously injured, and relieve doctors and nurses for the more urgent medical cases.

Let no one think, however, that first-aid training will only be of use during a civil defense emergency. The American Red Cross has long advocated first-aid training as worthwhile knowledge for all citizens.

More accidents occur in the home than any other place, not excepting factory, street, or playground. A mother or father who knows how to administer first-aid may save the life of some member of the family. The precious minutes before the arrival of a doctor can mean the difference between life and death for a person suffering from shock, poisoning, burns or serious wounds.

Would you know what to do if your child accidentally swallowed a fast-acting poison? If your husband's arm was profusely bleeding from a farm machinery injury? If someone close to you suddenly received third-degree burns? Could you use those vital minutes before medical assistance arrives to perform important life-saving first-aid functions?

The American Red Cross, in cooperation with the Maine Civil Defense and Public Safety program, is now conducting first-aid courses in many communities. Contact your local Red Cross Chapter or your local Civil Defense Director, for information regarding such classes nearest your home.

What you learn may help others; it is knowledge every family should have.

HALF OF BRITAIN'S voters have recently shown a singular disregard for their own personal welfare. After five years of the most glaring exhibition of incompetence on the part of Atlee's Socialist government, half of the electorate still favored the return of the incompetents.

A group of labor officials had attempted to operate one of the world's big businesses—England. The story will echo around the world for centuries to come. History will label it "the fall of the British empire."

Our managers are not labor union leaders, but the present condition of national and of world affairs is hardly a favorable commentary upon their sagacity.

Where does our country stand today? We are so terribly in debt that the nation's financial condition is perilous. Bad management, according to reports, has seriously delayed our rearmament program. We appear to be outnumbered in airplanes in Korea, thanks in part to Mr. Truman's brilliant judgment on plane construction. Through still unexplained tactics we lost China to the Reds and as a result are now losing the lives of our best young soldiers in Korea.

Before the New Deal came into power no nation dared imprison an American without just cause, and certainly no one would boastfully shoot an American airplane out of the sky unless we were at war.

We seem to be losing the respect of the world just at the moment when we so need it to hold the "fringe" nations to our side. Where will it end? And can we last until November 1952? And if we do hold on until that time will the American voter exhibit the same lack of horse sense that halt the British voters did? Will they take into consideration the awful mistakes of the last 16 years, or will they vote merely on for the imaginary luxuries of Socialism and its underdog brother—"ruin"?

Thursday, December 26

When they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. (Matthew 2:11) Read Mark 12:13-14.

GIVING of gifts has been accepted by all of us as a part of Christmas. When Jesus was born, he received gifts. The shepherds brought the glory of the heavens. The kings brought gifts to place at the manger-cradle.

Not the least hint is given us as to how they were used. I can easily believe that the myrrh was freely used to help those to health who were broken in body; that the frankincense was placed on the altar in the temple; and that while the Holy Family worshipped, the sweet scent filled the sanctuary. It probably was the gold that enabled Mary, Joseph, and the Child to "make their escape to Egypt. Whatever use Joseph and Mary made of those gifts, we can be sure it was all for the glory of God. In celebration of our Saviour's birthday we should bring gifts—useful gifts. We know that only gifts that have value can be acceptable to our Saviour. "O Come, let us adore Him."

Prayer

Accept us, now, our Saviour, mind, soul, and body. May Thy spirit, Thy presence, give life and enrichment to our homes. Bless them with the same glory Thy birth gave to a stable in Bethlehem many years ago. In Thy name we pray, Amen.

Troops in Bordeaux Region Find Country Fathers Knew

UNITED STATES airmen and troops moving into the Bordeaux region of France with expanded arms and find themselves in an area familiar to many of their fathers.

Bordeaux was one of the great ports of entry and centers of the AEP in World War I. It was of lesser importance in World War II because of effective barrier-bombing by German bombers.

The city, fourth in size and third most important port in France, lies in the Aquitaine basin, about 100 miles from the Atlantic coast.

The Bordeaux area is one of the great wine regions in the world. The famous Cognac brandy is produced here. The city is also the home of the world's largest distillery.

The city is famous for its growth and its many industries. It is a center of commerce and industry. The city is also the home of the world's largest distillery.

At Pointe de Grave at the mouth of the Gironde, Americans will find a memorial to the first U.S. troops to land in France in 1917.

Another monument commemorates the departure of Lafayette to North America in 1777.

Less than 100 miles southwest of Bordeaux are the famous resort towns of the Basque coast, Biarritz and St. Jean de Luz. Here visitors will find white, sandy beaches and excellent hotels and restaurants.

Men from the southeastern states will be at home in Les Landes, a wide sandy belt of pine forest that lies along the coast from the Gironde estuary almost to Biarritz. The Landes resembles the pine woods of the southern United States more to the eye than that all large standing trees are topped by a single pine.

There are many other things to see in the Bordeaux region. The city is a center of commerce and industry. The city is also the home of the world's largest distillery.

Quick-To-Make Holiday Favorites

Homemade Christmas candy brings a great deal of pleasure to all—young and old alike. However, candy-making is sometimes a tedious process which can take up many precious hours of your pre-holiday time. Well, now you won't have that problem to face—nor a messy clean-up job either—when you make these speedy simple candies.

Chocolate Crisps are prepared so quickly and easily that even the youngsters can turn out several batches in one afternoon. And you need only two ingredients—candy-making chocolate and candy-coated puffed wheat—to make three dozen crispy candies.

French Cocoa Balls, also quick and easy, are a soft, fudgy type of candy made with a new sweet cocoa mix. They can be rolled into various shapes with many attractive variations such as chopped walnuts, ground pistachio nuts, toasted coconut, etc. Economical, too, when every batch makes three to four dozen French-type chocolates.

CHOCOLATE CRISPS
1/2 package (4 squares) candy-making chocolate
2 cups candy-coated puffed wheat
Heat chocolate over boiling water until partly melted. Remove from water and stir rapidly until entirely melted. Add candy-coated puffed wheat and mix well. Drop from teaspoon on waxed paper or press into greased 8x8x2-inch square pan. Cool until firm. Makes 3 dozen clusters or squares.

FRENCH COCOA BALLS
1/2 cup 4-in-1 sweet cocoa mix
4 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons milk
Combine cocoa mix, butter, and milk in saucepan. Place over low heat until butter is melted and cocoa mix is dissolved, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add 1 cup of the sugar and the vanilla, mixing well. Blend in from teaspoon on waxed paper or press into greased 8x8x2-inch square pan. Cool until firm. Makes 3 dozen clusters or squares.

Many Maine homemakers are finding that tucking an extra piece of the material in the pockets of homemade aprons or children's overalls they give away is appreciated.

Came in handy when the garment must be mended.

Have You Ever Wondered ... ?

Q: Are light waves and radio waves the same?

A: Yes, except for length. Waves of visible light vary from those of violet, the shortest, which are about 1/70,000th of an inch long, to those of red, the longest, about 1/40,000th of an inch in length. Invisible waves shorter than the violet are called ultraviolet; while still others that are very much shorter are those of the X-rays. The waves longer than the red are called infrared and these extend to lengths of about one-twenty fifth of an inch, where they overlap with the shortest radio waves. The longest radio waves are several miles in length.

Q: How can I clean off the hardened film that has formed on the tiles of my bathroom from the plaster used between the joints when the tile was laid?

A: Try a dilute solution of muriatic (hydrochloric) acid, about one part of the acid to ten parts of water. Apply it with a scrub brush and, after cleaning, wash the tiles with clear water. The acid, of course, should be used with great care.

Q: Who was the first man to study living things under the microscope?

A: The compound microscope was invented about 1590, probably by a Hollander named Jansen, but the study came very largely from the work of Robert Hooke, who was actually the first to use it to look at living tissues—perhaps it was Jansen himself. By the middle of the 17th century improvements were made and a number of people used it and reported on their work. One was an Englishman, named Robert Hooke, who discovered the cells in plant tissue and published a book on his work in 1665. The real founder of the microscopic anatomy of plants and animals, however, was an Italian, Marcello Malpighi, who also was actively at work in the 1600's, and who first described the capillaries which carry blood to the tissues. About the same time Anton van Leeuwenhoek was working in the Netherlands, and he is credited with the discovery of red blood corpuscles, spermatazoa, the structure of muscle fiber and many bacteria.

Q: How long would it take a rocket ship to reach the planet Mars?

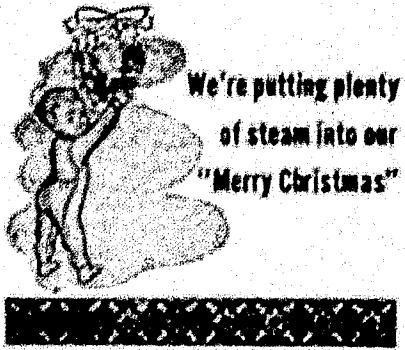

A: According to an English authority on space travel, Arthur C. Clarke, it would take a rocket ship about 229 days to reach Mars when that planet is at its mean distance from the Earth and about 237 days on the rare occasions when Mars is closest. This assumes that the ship would use fuel only in getting away from the Earth and in landing on Mars. During the rest of the trip it would be a small planet, moving in an orbit that would take it close to Mars. With an unlimited fuel supply it might be possible to go more directly and the time could be reduced considerably.
